A Virtual Exhibition of Paintings Created during Pandemic

The Georgian Program high school students conducted a final assembly in a distance mode and presented interesting talks, researches, and conference papers created throughout the second semester. 10 different presentations were introduced to the audience by the students who later answered the questions of attendees of the assembly.

The greatest interest was evoked by the exhibition of paintings of Giorgi Kurtanidze from grade 11. Giorgi became fond of painting during the pandemic and exhibited his works from this unprecedented time.

The students shared their vision of Grigol Robakidze's novel "Murdered Soul". Group work was created on the topic "History and Rhetoric". An interesting talk by M.Akhalia assured that patterns and regularities found all around the world could be discovered by conducting research at the European School.

In the end, the European School students reflected on and evaluated their projects developed during online learning.
