The Taliban Takeover - what to do next

As most of you know, the Taliban has taken over Afghanistan in August 2021, which has been a horrible event for the world. All these years that the US and other western countries have spent, working on making Afghanistan a civil nation have resulted in nothing. So, what to do next? Let's try to look at several possible solutions for the situation, and try to think which one would be the most beneficial for the international community, as well as Afghanistan itself.

The first possible solution is the easiest and the least beneficial one - to leave the country alone and stop all foreign intervention.

I was surprised to learn that this idea has huge support in the western world. I should say that certain arguments are proving that this could work - it will leave the country alone to its people to decide, and it will not require any more money in the US and Europe to be taken from the taxes. The main problem with this possible solution is that it will leave Afghanistan in an unstable regime, with a ruined economy, and with violations of basic human rights daily. We should understand that at this point the Afghan people do not have enough power to oppose this extremely strong regime, so the western world has to keep helping the people there.

The second possible solution for the problem is to intervene again, but this time, in a less radical way. The Taliban regime has to be overthrown, and it is not a debatable question. They have occupied Afghanistan and took nearly all rights from the people of the country. Coming from this, we can understand that right now the Western powers will have to take action, but here you might ask - "This way has not worked before - why should it work now?". I have to say that this is a very logical question, considering that this way has been a very debatable one. The Western powers should work on overthrowing the Taliban regime, but after that, they should try to work with the Afghan people to understand what they are ready for, and what they are not. Afghanistan is not as developed as many other nations, so when trying to install a democratic government, the culture and the mentality of the country should also be taken into consideration, if not, the Western powers can be viewed as enemies who are trying to remove the Afghan culture and traditions from the country, what obviously, is not a good position in people's minds. After the possible Afghan government will be created, the West should understand that they should try to work with the safety of the country, to make sure that terrorism will be prevented as much as possible, and what we have seen happening this year will not happen again.

Finally, I want to add that we should show our support to the Afghan people, who are suffering every single day from the horrible regime in their country. They need our support and help, to be able to show opposition to this totalitarianism.

The Eternal Storm

The eternal rage,
The fires forever burning,
The devil's puny rampage,
The result of this iniquitous age,
The myriads of souls on their knees and begging,
May God save these poor souls.

A lust that cannot be satisfied,
A desire that cannot be fulfilled,
A jealousy of those who are deified,
This is punishment for them who did as they willed,
They are doomed to forever putrefy,

They have abandoned God,
By abandoning God they have abandoned all that is good,
They have refused the chance of sainthood,
On the day of judgement, to the left they stood.

In order to love we need to be free,
God gave them the choice,
But man rejected the life-giving tree,
They are doomed never again to rejoice,

Inscribed above these eternal gates;
"Abandon all hope ye who enter here",
they loved the sin that God hates, they did not know Whom to fear.

But for those who opened the door,
They stand on the right,
Above in the heavens they shall Soar,
They will bear witness to the undying light,
Blessed are those who don't hear the Lion of Judah's roar.

They will be permitted to enter through the heavenly gates,
Saint Peter will let them through,
They who have received the grace that cultivates,
I can tell you this much is true.

Though our outer self is wasting away, our inner self is being renewed day by day. (2 Corinthians 4:16-18)
